The title is a pun: not only will Ivy and Bean "take care" of the babysitter in the mafia sense, but also care for her as if they were the babysitters, and she was the child. :) Ivy and Bean are best friends. At first glance they seem like opposites: Bean is wild, foul-mouthed (in a 7-year-old way), plays practical jokes on people, loves the outdoors, and disobeys authority figures.

Ivy and Bean are very realistic characters who play, laugh, fight, and get into trouble. They deal with the same issues that real middle class, 9-year-old girls deal with, like friends, siblings, and parents. In this installment, Bean is 'forced' into captivity with her older sister as the babysitter. Ivy helps her 'escape' and find more trouble. This chapter book has occasional sketches and illustrations that help readers visualize the girls' plight.
